Salvation is written as a dictionary detailing and making fun of often-used christian terminology and jargon. What you will find a few pages into the book however is that it is not only humorous, but also poignant and challenging. Whilst acknowledging the often silly things we Christians find ourselves thinking and saying Plass also challenges us on matters of the heart - areas where we are proud, self-centered and/or seriously flawed representatives of Christ. What I love is that Plass does this in a way which is gentle, gracious and encouraging whilst direct and to-the-point - a balance which is hard to find. A recommended read for Christians with both a sense of humour and a sense of humility.
