Best Way To Revisit Our Recent History And A Lost Art Form By Customer If you'd like to see how different the world is (and our own country for that matter) spend some time going back through comic strips and editorial cartoons from earlier decades. You will immediately notice the political correctness that's taken over in our culture. Things cartoonists could joke about then wouldn't make it to print these days. A parent leaves a child in the car while they run in the store for example would result in an arrest and social services taking the child away but not too long ago this was the norm. This is a generic example of the changes you'll find in our recent history by enjoying this book and others like it. As a fan of cartooning it's a great collection of different artists' work all with unique voices and style.

First published in 1972, the annual series has been widely acclaimed as a concise yet far-ranging pictorial history of each year's events. In addition, many volumes have featured a foreword by a distinguished history maker, reporter, or interpreter of historic events. Providing special insight into the cartoonist's art have been the following notables: James J. Kirkpatrick, syndicated columnist Daniel Patrick Moynihan, United States senator Jerry Robinson, syndicated editorial cartoonist Barry Goldwater, United States senator Hubert Humphrey, United States senator The 1982 edition contains more than 360 editorial cartoons reflecting the best efforts of 141 cartoonists, along with an illuminating foreword by Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist Mike Peters. He discusses how a cartoonist conceives the ideas for his daily work. ABOUT THE EDITOR Charles Brooks is past president of the Association of American Editorial Cartoonists and was a cartoonist for the Birmingham (Ala.) News for thirty-eight years. He has been the recipient of thirteen Freedom Foundation awards, a national VFW award, two Vigilante Patriot awards, and a Sigma Delta Chi award for editorial cartooning.

About the Author CHARLES BROOKS, a former president of the Association of American Editorial Cartoonists, has edited this series since its inception in 1972. Brooks served for 38 years as editorial cartoonist for the Birmingham News, where his work won numerous national awards.
