Not very funny By Kevin These cartoons utilize a combination of 2nd grade humor and medical terminology. I'll give you a few examples: (Doctor has a shoeprint on his back) Nurse: "Uh, Doc- you realize that kickbacks are illegal right?" (In a urology lab, Dr speaking to patient): "I dropped your urine sample. It was an accident." (Bumble bee on an exam table): Dr: "And your blood type is Bee positive." I like bad puns as much as the next guy, but these tend to be predictable and just don't strike me as funny. Hopefully these examples can help you decide for yourself.

Humorist Jonny Hawkins dispenses a daily dose of medical fun as he depicts amusing patient antics, wacky waiting room scenarios, and comical hospital high jinks. His cleverly cartooned illustrations provide medical professionals with a year's worth of mental-health breaks to tickle their funny bones and keep them in stitches. With no ill side effects, the Medical Cartoon-a-Day 2013 Calendar proves once again that laughter is the best medicine.

About the Author The cartoons of Jonny Hawkins have appeared in magazines, books, e-newsletters, and all sorts of products since 1986.
