You'll have to forgive me, but....By Z'annaE I've noticed that this book has quite the amount of reviews that state it as "nonsense" which brings me to feel as if I may be "bashed on" for putting in my two cents (experience) on what may seem bizarre but is in fact, true. I would play with the spells in this book since I was 15.. but I did a spell, that actually came true in the bizarrest of ways (hint; it's the one with the spices..)lol it was the only one I could do properly since I only had spices at 15, and the spice was all that was required ... but it honestly did bring what it promised. I can only speak for myself on this account, but I'm just saying, before you even look at the bad reviews .. try the section with the "spices" out .. you don't even have to buy the book .. just give it a try.. (it's very simple to remember; simplicity has it's power too, mind you.) because this continues to boggle me and I want to see more reviews if others experienced the same thing I did. Excuse me as I go fetch the book and type in the name of the chapter..Got it! "Spice up your love" page 16.Did the spell when I was 15.. met a man years later (first boyfriend) who became my best friend and we fell in love, he is now my fiance and strangely enough, he just "happens" to be wealthy as the book stated.Try it out. I just needed to pass it on.Many blessings, - Emily0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. title is mis leadingBy Fatimah2001These spells are very beginner but useable. You had the best intentions, but it just didn't work out.Now how do you soften the blow of breaking up?

YOU WILL NEED TO GATHER: -- Blue paper and a pen-- A small stone or pebble-- A length of white wool-- Two white candles
At midday on a Saturday, write his name three times on a piece of blue paper. Wrap it around the pebble and tie some white wool around the pebble until the paper is completely covered, leaving enough wool to tie a bow. Place the wrapped pebble between two lit white candles and repeat this incantation.'O BITTERSWEET LOVE AROUND, AROUND, BELOW AND ABOVE
