Sarah O'Brien : The Office Space Kit before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Office Space Kit:

Look closely at the picture - know what you're gettingBy SatEotU- The stapler is small and won't even take standard staples-the coffee mug is small and kind of cheap-the "is this good for the company sign" should have been rolled in the box, it's covered in creases-the jump to conclusions mat is small. more like a step to conclusions mat-the flare is a button, it's really small, but they didn't screw it upIt's only $11, so you can't complain too much, but they just didn't try very hard to make a good product. kind of like an initech employee wouldby the way, if you really want that red swingline stapler, here it is:Swingline Limited Edition Series 747 Rio Red Business Stapler (S7074736E). the packaging is clever, says "the star of any office space"0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Teenager approved giftBy M. SpringerWe got this as a gift, and the recipient loved it! We also got the movie and a red stapler.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. It is what it isBy M. Talwarif you're expecting some amazing "ripped from the movies" set of memorabilia you're in the wrong place. You get what you paid for, which in this case is a myriad of cheap novelties. It is nothing earth shattering but at the same time, anyone that resides in a cubicle farm will appreciate the humor these items are intended to bring. The box my set came in was in bad shape, probably had been sitting on and off shelves for a while, taken a few tumbles etc. However the items inside were in tact. Given I spent very little just for a new work place mug, I was happy that it arrived in one piece. The TPS report cover sheets, the stapler, the sticker, the banner and the jump to conclusions mats are nice novelties but nothing that will last more than 3 weeks at best

Office Space, the universally laugh-out-loud movie that pokes fun at the everyday monotony and pointlessness of modern office life, has become a cult classic among viewers. More than 5 million DVD and VHS copies of Office Space have shipped, and a new special DVD edition was just released in November of 2005. Now, for the first time ever, comes the official Office Space Kit that gives you everything you need to survive Mondays in the cubicle. The perfect gift for anyone and everyone who breaks into a sweat just thinking about their job, The Office Space Kit is for all the minions out there whose TPS reports just aren't cutting it. Includes the office accessories featured in the movie: Milton's Red Stapler Lumbergh's Initech Mug "Is this Good for the Company?" Sign Starter "Flair" "PC Load Letter" Copy Machine Sticker Your Very Own "Jump To Conclusions" Mat A Humorous 32-Page Book (Complete with TPS Report Covers)
